

National CASA Association Social Media Posting Policy

Thank you to all of our Facebook page visitors—especially those of you who use CASAforChildren.org and this Facebook page as a way to deepen your connection to other people engaged in the important work of finding safe, permanent homes for abused and neglected children. We have committed to expanding our communication with members of the CASA community by posting news and responding as quickly as we can to questions raised here.

We truly appreciate your comments and insights. We are a community that values mutual respect and civility. Disagreements, debates, and discussions are to be expected—that's often how we learn from each other. It's important that we engage in these conversations in a way that is respectful and positive.

Please treat each other with respect. Name-calling and offensive or foul language just isn't acceptable. We want a free and open discussion, but we will delete posts that are overly disruptive to the community.

Also, never post your personal contact information here. If you need to reach us, call our main number at 1-800-628-3233 or use the online forms at CASAforChildren.org. Sharing contact information is neither safe nor wise. We're committed to taking every step to protect everyone's privacy. Help us with that.

Finally, advertising or solicitation is not the purpose of our page. Posts including advertising or promoting a specific Web site, event, or organization may be deleted.

Online tools can help us expand the CASA movement. We encourage all of our supporters to be involved. Let's treat each other with dignity and respect and build a strong and effective online community to make a difference in the lives of abused and neglected children.
